WGST 796-004 CRN: 21897 T/TH 4:25PM – 5:40PM RINEHART SERVICE LEARNING AND SOCIAL JUSTICE: THE ART OF GRANT WRITING

This course provides an introduction to grant writing and grants administration in reference to global women's rights. It is designed for students in various disciplines who want to understand the grant process from the introductory stages to the final stages of implementing the grant. Beginners in grant writing and those who already have some grant writing experience are welcome. The class will particularly focus on grants that apply to women and gender issues from both a national and international perspective. Students will be required to locate and write a grant which will include a letter of inquiry, a cover letter, a project narrative, and a budget. Service learning is a component of the class so applicable grants will be submitted to relevant organizations. Each student is limited to 20 contact hours with their chosen organization.

WGST 796-005 CRN: 29515 W 11:20AM-2:00PM SKLAROFF HISTORY OF GENDER AND SEXUALITIES IN AMERICA

This graduate course will expose students to major themes and scholarly literature in the History of Gender and Sexualities in the United States from the Colonial Period to the 20th Century through an intersectional approach. Topics of discussion will include issues such as changing ideas of normative sexuality, political movements for women's equality and LGBTQ rights, gender stereotypes in popular culture, and connections between ideologies and policy formation. Readings stand as models for effective ways to research American gender and sexuality from a variety of perspectives and disciplines. Students will become familiar with major historiographical trends in the fields, as well as the ways that the field has shifted over time, influenced by both political and intellectual developments. While a familiarity with feminist theory, or courses such as WGST 701 will be useful, they are not required.
